

Lone Workers Personal Safety Awareness

Introduction

In an environment which drives companies to cut costs, staff reduction is often the option taken. This trend has resulted in an increasing number of field operatives working alone in ever-demanding situations. Lone Workers Safety Awareness Training seeks to make employees aware of some of the skills and techniques which should give them the confidence to deal with, and respond to, potentially threatening situations.

Aim

The aim of the course is to enhance the safety awareness of employees operating as lone workers.

Target Audience

All employees who may be asked to work alone in potentially threatening situations.

Prerequisites

None

Duration

1 Day

Venue

The course can be held at a client's site. A room suitable for classroom work is required. Alternatively, the course can be held at one of our training sites. This is a classroom based course.

Cost

Contact us for details.

Qualifications

This is a unique course and is recognised as such throughout the industry. Many of the major organisations are now insisting that anyone deploying to large crowd events must have received appropriate training. Prime will issue a passport which is accepted by most of the major broadcast organisations as evidence of completion of the course.

Course Design

Prime Media recognise that safety awareness training should be designed around an individual's or an organisation's needs. Clearly, these needs will vary from business to business. Consequently, courses are customised on a client by client basis but will normally include some or all of the following subjects:
